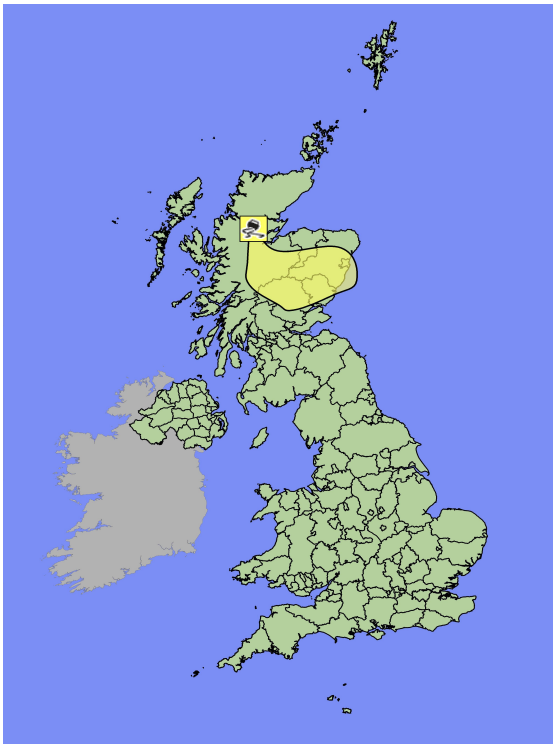
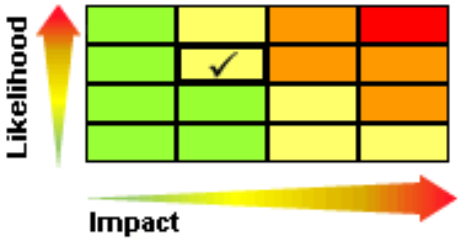
National Severe Weather Warning Service





Chief Forecasters Assessment
The yellow marked area is at greatest risk of ice returning overnight, though some higher roads in Southeast Scotland may also dip to freezing around the dawn period with a risk of localised icy stretches there.

The Met Office have issued a Yellow Warning of Ice

Valid from 04:00 on Sun, 09th Dec 2012 until 11:00 on Sun, 09th Dec 2012

A band of rain will clear in the early hours of the morning. Clearing skies will allow temperatures to dip bringing a risk of icy stretches. The public are advised to take extra care
